

I oppose the abolishment of the cross-ownership law established in 1975 preventing the same company from owning a newspaper and television station in the same town. Media needs to come from as many different sources as possible, so as many different voices as possible will be heard. This is a democracy, despite our strong capitalistic values, and a democracy truly prevails when we are able to make truly INFORMED choices. The abolishment of this law would be one of the last steps toward ensuring a completely brainwashed, dumbed-down public base primed to promote whatever the single media mega-conglomerate is promoting. The abolishment of this law threatens our depth and diversity of thinking further.

Thanks,
Sandra Marchese